... And Not So Long Ago

A sign of the times under Keene's big clock: high school students of 1949-1950, Jack Hanrahan and Dino Chakalos are looking swell. Behind them are SS Kresge store and Spencer Hardware.

A Wyman Tavern Benefit Antique Show was held at Keene State College in May of 1970. Pictured are Gallery at Knotty Pine's Joan Pappas and Ralph Page – the "Dean of American Folk Dance" and president of the Historical Association of Cheshire County for 15 years.

In The 1960s

On July 4, 1964, Robin Hood Park and Wheelock Park were dedicated to honor Keene's servicemen.

In July of that same year, Keene District Court was put into operation, replacing the former Police Court.

The year was 1965, and the City of Keene was the first New Hampshire city to be honored as a candidate in the All-American City Award of the National Municipal League and Look magazine.

Also this year, civil rights worker Jonathan Daniels from Keene was killed; he was buried at Monadnock View Cemetery with nearly 1000 people attending his funeral.

Other noteworthy happenings in 1965: the world's Horseshoe Tournament was held in Keene, and the new Keene State College Mason Library and Thorne Art Gallery were dedicated.
